

LITTLE IRRITATIONS OF LIFE

By the Mediterranean.

It seems the present war between Italy and Tripoli—between the north and the south shore of the Mediterranean—is merely the revival of an ancient rumpus. Rome and Carthage fought the same battle long before the days of Christ. And they fought for 23 long years, too.

The Rome of that time is but a memory and Carthage—dust. Wonder if that will ever happen to New York and London! Makes a fellow thoughtful, doesn't it?

—O—O—

Pittsburgh thief robbed news-boy of 55 cents, earnings of day,